

Strategic Partnership For Development of Leaders in Evangelism Announced by Wheaton College Graduate School and Arrow Leadership

Wheaton College Graduate School and Arrow Leadership are pleased to announce a new strategic partnership to develop leaders in evangelism. Citing the crucial need for leaders who are able to think critically and act creatively to embody and communicate the gospel in our contemporary world, Wheaton College President Dr. Duane Litfin says, “The partnership of Wheaton College with Arrow Leadership in this effort is a natural. Our goal is to work together to create a synergy in generating evangelistically-oriented leaders that neither organization working alone could achieve.”

This new partnership will connect proven leaders in evangelism from the Arrow Leadership Program with Wheaton Graduate School’s new Master of Arts in Evangelism and Leadership. As Arrow Leadership’s President Dr. Carson Pue comments, “By combining Arrow’s focus on developing ministry leaders who are led more by Jesus, who lead more like Jesus and who lead more to Jesus with Wheaton’s strong combination of academic excellence, gifted faculty-practitioners and outstanding reputation, I believe leaders passionate about effective evangelism will benefit greatly and I believe the Kingdom will benefit with evangelism champions at the helm of local churches and ministries.”

Graduates of the two-year Arrow Leadership Program will automatically receive a 25% scholarship for all courses taken at Wheaton. Arrow graduates will also receive 12 credit hours toward their MA after completion of a weekend seminar offered at Wheaton each October, with the first one held on October 19–21, 2007. Immediately after the weekend seminar, Arrow students can take a week-long four credit modular.
